How long has your firm been in business and why are you operating in the Salina region?
There is an ever growing need for Women mentors and Sponsorship. Coaching and mentoring female students and women in the workforce is a key need in Salina and our surrounding communities, particularly with the relative number of female leaders and potential mentors shrinking as you advance up the ladder. In many cases, women who have been abused/neglected, or on the other end of the spectrum, have cultural and institutional barriers to advancement, lack the accessible network of supportive peer mentors and allies, thus causing a domino affect on our children and family home life today.

Mentoring can take on many forms. It can be one-on-one or be done in a group setting through relationships and networking. LIRO has developed Lady Etiquette classes and networking programs through our Women of Influence project to help Women obtain the coaching and mentoring they need through our Lady connections.

What are some of the plans you have for the future of your business?
By developing Lady Connections, Women are in a position to develop multiple sponsors, learn more about career opportunities and build positive relationships that will bring their knowledge, skills, and abilities to the attention of multiple constituencies. Women will be able to develop social skills allowing relationship growth at both work and home life.
